a highly topical analysis of european nationalism from the french revolution through to the aftermath of the first world war when the nationalist issues and problems that dominate the political landscape of our own time were already fully established covering an enormous range of peoples from the icelanders to the gypsies from brittany to wallachia the book presents a wealth of historical geopolitical information unavailable elsewhere essential as a reference work it also provides a unique opportunity to survey systematically a crucial but fragmented subject in its full european context for historians political scientists departments of european studies and general readers history education by nature transmits an official version of national identity national identity is not a fixed entity and controversy over history teaching is an essential part of the process of redefining and regenerating the nation france and the united states have in particular experienced demographic and cultural shifts since the 1960s that have resulted in intense debates over national identity this volume examines how each country s national history is represented in primary schools social studies textbooks and curricula and how they handle contemporary issues of ethnicity diversity gender socio economic inequality and patriotism by analyzing each country separately and comparatively it demonstrates how various groups including academics politicians and citizen activists have influenced education and how the process of writing and rewriting history perpetuates a nation drawing on empirical studies of the united states and france this volume provides insight into broader nationalist processes and instructive principles for similar countries in the modern world catastrophic historicism unsettles the historicist constitution of julia de burgos 1914 53 puerto rico s most iconic writer a critical task that necessitates redefining the concept of historicism through readings of aristotle walter benjamin jacques derrida werner hamacher and frank ankersmit mendoza de jesús shows that historicism grounds historical objectivity in the historian s capacity to compose totalizing narratives that domesticate the contingency of the past while critiques of historicism as a realism leave untouched the sovereignty of the historian the book insists that reading the text of history requires an attunement to danger a modality that interrupts historicism by infusing the past with a contingency that evades total appropriation after desedimenting the monumental tradition that has reduced de burgos to a totemic figure catastrophic historicism reads the poet's first collection poema en 20 surcos 1938 mendoza de jesús argues that the historicity of poema crystallizes in the lyrical speaker's self institution as an embodied ipseity which requires producing racialized gendered allegorical figures the bearers of an abject flesh that lack any ontological resistance to modern alienation rather than treating de burgos's poetics of selfhood as the ideal image of puerto rican sovereignty mendoza de jesús endangers this idealization by drawing attention to the abjection that sustains our attachments to ipseity as the form of a truly sovereign life in this way catastrophic historicism not only resets the terms of ongoing critiques of historicism in the humanities it also intervenes in puerto rican historicity for the sake of its transformation in the late 1840s more than one million irish men and women died of starvation and disease and a further two million emigrated in one of the worst european sustenance crises of modern times yet a general feeling persists that the Irish famine eluded satisfactory representation writing the famine examines literary texts by writers such as William Carleton, Anthony Trollope, James Clarence Mangan, John Mitchel, and Samuel Ferguson and reveals how they interact with histories, sermons, economic treatises to construct a narrative of the most important and elusive events in Irish history in this strikingly original and compelling contribution to Irish culture studies. Christopher Moras explores the concept of the famine as a moment of absence; he argues the event constitutes an unspeakable moment in attempts to write the past, a point at which the great Victorian metanarratives of historical change collapse, aligning itself with new historical literary criticism. Writing the Famine examines the attempts of a wide range of nineteenth-century writing to ensure the memorialization of an event which seems to resist representation.

The essays in this volume seek to explore and explain the origins, nature, and consequences of modern Irish terrorism from the front flap.
